

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY

Sociology is the study of human social interactions, relationships, and institutions. The subject matter of sociology is diverse and expands, from family to the state, caste and social class to the shared beliefs in culture, from crime to religion, and social stability to contemporary change in all societies. It studies society from personal, societal, and global levels as the subject has become significant to the fast-emerging social problems and changing social scenarios. Students can opt for Sociology as a subject in the BA program which started in 2001. MA in Sociology was introduced in Academic Session 2014-15 and since then sociology has been gaining popularity among students. The department maintains a departmental library for academic assistance to students. The PG program is a four-semester course including 16 papers with a dissertation and Viva Voce. The research areas undertaken by students for the dissertation cover a wide range of issues like the impact of industrialization on society and culture, problems of weaker sections, gender and society, women empowerment, environmental issues, etc. The faculty is regularly engaged in teaching, research work, and mentoring students and participates in academic training programs like FDP, Induction Programs, and Refresher courses to augment their professional skills. Some of the major areas of teaching in the MA program are Sociological Theories, Social Research, Sociology of Environment, Sociology of Crime, Women and Society, Rural Sociology, Sociology of Religion, Social Psychology, Social Demography, and Urban Sociology. The Department also conducts field visits and tours for exposure and experiential learning for students
